EFFECT: Replaces an unidentified House Bill number with a reference to HB 1310, so that a cause of action may be brought against a peace officer who engages in conduct that violates the duty of reasonable care under HB 1310, which requires an officer to use reasonable care when determining whether to use physical force and when using physical force against another, including requiring an officer to:

- Reasonably avoid conduct that would create situations requiring physical force;
- Exhaust available and appropriate de-escalation tactics prior to using physical force;
- Use only the minimal degree of physical force necessary under the circumstances;
- Terminate any use of physical force as soon as the necessity for the force ends; and
- Use available and appropriate less lethal alternatives before using deadly force, and make less lethal alternatives issued to the officer reasonably available for their use.
