

WAC 357-28-088 If an employee transfers or demotes will the time spent at step L count towards the six years to qualify for step M in the new position? If an employee transfers to a position the time at step L in the previous position will count towards the six years to qualify for step M in the new position.

If an employee is demoted (voluntary or involuntary), the time at step L in the previous position will not count towards the six years to qualify for step M except if the demotion is a result of a reasonable accommodation or due to layoff action in accordance with WAC 357-28-135(4).
